CHAPTER V.

Notwithstanding Harris' late hours the household was early astir the following morning. At five o'clock Jim was at work in the stables, feeding, rubbing down and harnessing his horses, while Allan and his father walked to the engine, where they built a fresh fire and made some minor repairs. A little later Beulah came down to the corral with her milk-pails, and the cows, comfortably chewing where they rested on their warm spots of earth, rose slowly and with evident great reluctance at her approach. The Harris farm, like fifty thousand others, rose from its brief hush of rest and quiet to the sounds and energies of another day.

Breakfast, like the meal of the night before, was eaten hurriedly, and at first without conversation, but at length Harris paused long enough to remark, "Riles is talkin' o' goin' West."

"The news might be worse," said Beulah. Riles, although a successful farmer, had the reputation of being grasping and hard to a degree, even in a community where such qualities, in moderation, were by no means considered vices.

Harris paid no attention to his daughter's interruption. It was evident, however, that his mention of Riles had a purpose behind it, and presently he continued:

"Riles has been writin' to the department of the interior, and it seems they're openin' a lot of land for homesteadin' away West, not far from the Rocky mountains. Seems they have a good climate there, and good soil, too."

"I should think Mr. Riles would be content with what he has," said Mary Harris. "He has a fine farm here, and I'm sure both him and his wife have worked hard enough to take it easier now."

"Hard work never killed nobody," pursued the farmer. "Riles is good for many a year yet, and free land ain't what it once was. Those homesteads'll be worth twenty dollars an acre by the time they're proved up."

Breakfast and Harris' speech came to an end simultaneously, and the subject was dropped for the time. In a few minutes Jim had his team hitched to the tank wagon in the yard. The men jumped aboard and the wagon rattled down the road to where the engine and plows sat in the stubble field.

"What notion's this father's got about Riles, do you suppose, mother?" asked Beulah, as the two women busied themselves with the morning work in the kitchen.

"Dear knows," said her mother, wearily. "I hope he doesn't take it in his head to go out there, too."

"Who, Dad? Oh, he wouldn't do that. His heart's quite wrapped up in the farm here. I wish he'd unwrap it a bit and let it peek out at times."

"I'm not so sure. I'm beginning to think it's the money that's in the farm your father's heart is set on. If the money was to be made somewhere else his heart would soon shift. Here I've slaved and saved until I'm an—an old woman, and what better are we for it? We've better things to eat and more things to wear and a bigger house to keep clean, and your father thinks we ought to be satisfied. But he isn't satisfied himself. He's slaving harder than ever, and now he's got this notion about going West. Oh, you'll see it will come to that. He knows our life isn't complete, and he thinks more money will complete it. All the experience of twenty years hasn't taught him any better."

Beulah stood aghast at this outburst, and when her mother paused and looked at her, and she saw the unbidden wells of water gathering in the tender eyes, the girl could no longer restrain herself. With a cry she flung her arms about her mother's neck, and for a few moments the two forgot their habitual restraint and were but naked souls mingling together.

"Your father is hungry," said the mother. "Hungry—hungry, and he thinks that more land, more money, more success, will fill him. And in the meantime he's forgetting the things that would satisfy—the love that was ours, the little devo—Oh, child, what am I saying? What an unfaithful creature I am! You must forget, Beulah, you must forget these words—words of shame they are!"

"The shame is his," declared the girl, defiantly, "and I won't stand this nonsense about homesteading again—I just won't stand it. If he says anything more about it I'll—I'll fly off, that's what I'll do. And I've a few remarks for him alone itiles that won't keep much longer. The old badger—he's at the bottom of all this."

"You mustn't quarrel with your father, dearie, you mustn't do that."

"I'm not going to quarrel with him, but I'm going to say some things that need saying. And if it comes to a showdown, and he must go—well, he must, but you and I will stay with the old farm, won't we, mother?"

"There, there now," the mother said, gently stroking her daughter's hair. "Let us forget this, and remember how much we have to be thankful for. We have our health, and our home, and the bright sunshine, and—I declare," she interrupted, catching a glimpse of something through the window, "if the cows haven't broken from the lower pasture and are all through the oatfield! You'll have to take Collie and get them back, somehow, or bring them up to the corral."

Pulling a sun-bonnet over her head Beulah called the dog, which came leaping upon her with boisterous affection, and hurried down the path to the field where the cows stood almost lost in a jungle of green oats. She soon located the breach in the fence and, with the help of the dog, quickly turned the cows toward it. But alack!

just as victory seemed assured a rabbit was frightened from its hiding-place in the green oats and sailed forth in graceful bounds across the pasture. The dog, of course, concluded that the capture of the rabbit was of much more vital importance to the Harris homestead than driving any number of stupid cattle, and darted across the field in pursuit, wasting his breath in sharp, eager yelps as he went.

Whereupon the cows turned outward again, not boisterously nor insolently, but with a calm persistence that steadily wore out the girl's strength and patience. She was in no joyous mood at best, and the perverseness of things aggravated her beyond endurance. Her callings to the cattle became more and more tearful, and presently ended in a sob.

"There, now, Beulah, don't worry; we will have them in a minute," said a quiet voice, and looking about she found Jim almost at her elbow, his omnipresent smile playing gently about his white teeth. "I was down at the creek filling the tank, when I saw you had a little rebellion on your hands, and I thought re-enforcements might be in order."

"You might've hollered farther back," she said, half reproachfully, but there was a light of appreciation in her expensive, and had to be paid for in cash. Moreover, Allan occasioned his father some uneasiness. He was young, and had not yet learned the self-control to be expected in later life. More than once of late Allan had crossed the boundary of moderation and John Harris was by no means indifferent to the welfare of his only son. Indeed, the bond between the two was so real and so intense that Harris had never been able to bring himself to contemplate their separation, and the boy had not even so much as thought of establishing a home of his own. The idea of homesteading together assured further years of close relationship between father and son, and the younger man fell in whole-heartedly with it.

"We'll hurry up the plowing, Dad, and run west before the harvest is on us," Allan said as they rode home through the darkness. "We can file our land and get back for the fall work. Then we will go out for the winter and commence our duties. The only question is, can they grow anything on that land out there?"

"That's what they used to ask when we came to Manitoba," said his father. "And there were years when I doubted the answer myself. Some parts were frozen out year after year, and they're among the best in the country now, and never think of frost. The same thing'll happen out there, and we might as well be in the game."

To do him justice, it was not altogether the desire for more wealth that prompted Harris. It was the call of new land; the call he had heard and answered in the early eighties; the old appetite that had lain dormant for a quarter of a century, but was still in his blood, waiting only a suggestion of the open spaces, a whiff from dry grass on the wind-swept plains, the zigzag of a wagon-trail streaking afar into the horizon, to set it tingling again.

So this morning father and son were especially anxious that not a moment of their plowing weather should be lost, and it was particularly aggravating when the hired man's long delay resulted in a bubbling sputter followed by a dry hiss from the injector, warning the engineer that the water-tank was empty. Allan shot an anxious glance down the road to the coulee, but the water team was not in sight.

Seizing the whistle cord, he sent its peremptory summons into the air.

Harris looked up from the plows, and the two exchanged frowns of annoyance. But the water stood high in the glass, and Allan did not reduce the speed, although he cut the link action another notch to get every ounce of advantage from the expansion. But the water went down, down in the glass, and still there was no sign of a further supply. Allan again cut the air with his whistle, and at length, with a muttered imprecation, he slammed the throttle shut and jumped from the engine.

"Keep a keen eye on your fire," said Harris, "and I'll go down and see what's wrong with him." So the farmer strode off across the plowed field. The delay annoyed him, and he felt unreasonably cross with Travers. As he plodded on through the heavy soil

DEMAND FOR TANLAC BREAKS ALL RECORDS

Amazing Success Achieved by Celebrated Medicine Not Only Phenomenal, But Unprecedented—Over 20,000,000 Bottles Sold in Six Years—Foreign Countries Clamor for It.

Never before, perhaps, in the history of the drug trade has the demand for a proprietary medicine ever approached the wonderful record that is now being made by Tanlac, the celebrated medicine which has been accomplishing such remarkable results throughout this country and Canada. As a matter of fact, the marvelous success achieved by this medicine is not only phenomenal, but unprecedented.

The first bottle of Tanlac to reach the public was sold just a little over six years ago. Its success was immediate and people everywhere were quick to recognize it as a medicine of extraordinary merit. Since that time there have been sold throughout this country and Canada something over Twenty Million (20,000,000) bottles, establishing a record which has probably never been equaled in the history of the drug trade in America.

Fame is International.

The instant and phenomenal success which Tanlac won when it was first introduced has been extended to practically every large city, small town, village and hamlet in North America. Its fame has become international in scope and England, Japan, Mexico, Cuba, Hawaii, Alaska, Porto Rico and many European countries are clamoring for it.

From coast to coast and from the Great Lakes, Tanlac is known and honored. Millions have taken it with the use of Tanlac.

Tanlac is sold in Hondo by W. H. Windrow; in Castroville by Joseph Courand & Co.; and in Dunlap by Louis A. Haby; and by all leading druggists.

his temper did not improve, and he was talking to himself by the time he came upon Travers, giving his team their wind at the top of the hill leading up from the creek.

"What kept you?" he demanded when he came within a rod of the wagon. "Here's the outfit shut down waiting for water, and you—"

"I'm sorry, Mr. Harris—"

"That ain't what I asked you. You can't make steam with sorrow. What have you been foolin' about?"

"I haven't been fooling. As to what delayed me—well, you're delaying me now. Better jump on and ride up with me."

"So you won't tell me, eh? You think you can do what you like with my team and my time, and it's none of my business. We'll see whose business it is."

eye when she dared raise it toward him. "I'm afraid I was beginning to be very foolish."

She tripped again on the treacherous buckwheat, but he held her arm in a strong grasp against which the weight of her slim figure seemed but as a feather blown against a wall. Then they set about their task, but the sober-eyed cows had no thought of being easily deprived of their feast, and it was some time before they were all turned back into the pasture and the fence temporarily repaired behind them.

"I can't thank you enough," Beulah was saying. "You just keep piling one kindness on top of another. Say, Jim, honest, what makes you do it?"

But at that moment the keen blast of an engine whistle came cutting through the air—a long clear note, followed by a series of toots in rapid succession.

"I guess they're running short of water," said Jim. "I must hustle." So saying, he ran to the ford of the creek where the tank-wagon was still standing, and in a minute his strong frame was swaying back and forth to the rhythmic clanking of the pump.

Meanwhile other things were transpiring. Harris had returned from town the night before with the fixed intention of paying an early visit to the Farther West. He and Riles had spent more time than they should be breasting the village bar, while the latter drew a picture of rising color of the possibilities which the new lands afforded. Harris was not a man who abused himself with liquor, and Riles, too, rarely forgot that indulgence was BECAUSE we put the utmost quality into this one brand. Camels are as good as it's possible for skill, money and lifelong knowledge of fine tobaccos to make a cigarette.

Nothing is too good for Camels. And bear this in mind! Everything is done to make Camels the best cigarette it's possible to buy. Nothing is done simply for show.

Take the Camel package for instance. It's the most perfect packing science can devise to protect cigarettes and keep them fresh. Heavy paper—secure foil wrapping—revenue stamp to seal the fold and make the package air-tight. But there's nothing flashy about it. You'll find no extra wrappers. No frills or furbelows.

Such things do not improve the smoke any more than premiums or coupons. And remember—you must pay their extra cost or get lowered quality.

If you want the smoothest, mellowest, mildest cigarette you can imagine—and one entirely free from cigarettey aftertaste, It's Camels for you.

The Warehouse and Marketing Department should be Consolidated with the Department of Agriculture.

Governor Neff recommended the Consolidation of the Warehouse Department with the Department of Agriculture in a very strong message to the Regular Session of the Legislature, but the bill failed of passage in the Senate.

He will recommend the passage of this measure again to the Special Session as a matter of efficiency and economy in the administration of the State government.

Both of these departments have a division of markets, and each has other divisions.

There is no sound reason for having these two departments to administer the agricultural laws of the State when one department can manage them just as efficiently and much more economically.

The statements being sent broadcast over the State, that the "Governor and the Commissioner of Agriculture are attempting to destroy the Warehouse and Marketing Department" are false, and are made by men who are afraid they will LOSE THEIR JOBS when this Consolidation bill is passed, and they are made for the sole purpose of deceiving the people.

Nobody is attempting to destroy any useful work the department is doing—but merely to transfer the management of it to another department, which of course will destroy some USELESS JOBS but will retain ALL THE USEFUL WORK.

The head of the Warehouse Department has been changed four times in six years, and if these changes did not kill the department, why would one more change kill it?

The Department of Agriculture can certainly appoint as honest and as capable men to do this work as those now filling these positions, or the same men could do just as efficient service under the Department of Agriculture as they are now doing, and the duplication and extra expense could be cut out.

The Department of Agriculture has to keep men in different parts of the State to perform the duties imposed upon it by law, and these men can inspect gins and warehouses, test scales, and perform many of the duties that the Warehouse Department is now performing, and save the state this extra expense.

This duplication of men and traveling expense ought to be stopped, and it will be stopped if this law is passed.

The investigating Committee of the 35th Legislature recommended that this Consolidation be made, and that it would save the State $50,000 a year.

The State Democratic Platforms of 1918 1920 demanded that the Legislature consolidate such boards, commissions and departments, as would eliminate duplication and secure efficiency and economy in the administration of the State government.

In the race for Commissioner of Agriculture there was but one issue between my opponent and myself, and it was this Consolidation.

In my platform which was published extensively I used the following language:

"I favor the Consolidation of the Warehouse Department with the Department of Agriculture as recommended by the State Investigating Committee, in the interest of economy and efficiency."

They both deal with agricultural problems and properly belong under one head, so that a comprehensive plan for warehousing and marketing may be worked out without strife or friction. We have too many agencies attempting to administer agricultural laws and too many CHAIR WARMERS and MOUTH FARMERS drawing an annual stipend from the State.

We need the A. & M. College to teach agriculture, horticulture and kindred subjects and the Department of Agriculture, to administer the laws relating to all branches of Agriculture, but we do not need other paid agencies to divide the work and create strife. If the Legislature will consolidate the Warehouse Department with the Department of Agriculture, I will guarantee to administer both departments for $50,000 a year less than they are now costing. I will also guarantee not to ask an increase in my salary because of extra work, or the high cost of living."

Knowing the positions of the two candidates the democratic voters nominated me by a majority of 63,871 votes over a man who is chief of the Bureau of Markets in the Warehouse Department and who is still trying to prevent this consolidation, said the people gave me the largest vote in the general election of any other candidate.

Shall the voice of the people, the recommendations of the Governor, the Legislative Investigating Committee, and two State Democratic Platforms be repudiated and the State subjected to further useless expense in order to permit PIE EATERS TO HOLD JOBS?

Respectfully,
GEO. B. TERRELL.

Mrs. August Hornung.

No death in Hondo ever caused a greater shock or provoked a more profound feeling of sadness among our people than did the passing of this good lady, which occurred last Saturday evening at 9:10 o'clock. She had spent a portion of the afternoon at the home of a friend, and on returning to her own home about 6:30 o'clock remarked to her husband, who had returned from his day's work, that it had been many a day since she had had such a thoroughly enjoyable time. Shortly after reaching home, however, she complained of a slight nausea, and on her husband suggesting that she take something to relieve her, declared she would soon be her normal self, attaching no importance to her indisposition. Mr. Hornung also anticipating no serious consequences from her ailment, went about his chores in the yard preparatory for the approaching night; on returning to the house he found her attacked by a spell of vomiting; he insisted on calling a physician, but she again made light of her ailment, saying she had been subject to such attacks all her life and maintained that she would be all right. While Mr. Hornung had his back turned to her he heard a peculiar noise, turning to her and seeing that she was critically ill he seized her and laid her on the bed, she expiring in his arms. Her death is attributed to acute indigestion, and a weakened heart action, the result of an attack of influenza suffered some years ago.

While deceased had passed the meridian of life she was of a strong, robust physique and no one dreamed that she would be the next to answer the call of the grim reaper. Katherine Britz was a native of Medina county, being born at D'Hanis some 68 years ago, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Britz; she was married to Mr. August Hornung in the Catholic Church in San Antonio, July 8, 1871; besides her husband she is survived by five children, four daughters and one son, towit: Mrs. Henry Hoefling and Mrs. E. B. Ernest of San Antonio, Mrs. W. W. Walker of Austin, and Mrs. Hazen Wallace Kendrick of Boulder, Colorado, and Mr. Alois Hornung of Hondo; nine grandchildren, Josie and Clarence Collman, Madeline and E. B. Ernest; Helen Hoefling; Wilbur, Jack, Hazen and August Walker; seven sisters, Mesdames Chas. Boog, Regina Deckert and Emil Saathoff of D'Hanis, Mrs. Eug. Grimsinger of Hondo, Mrs. Bertha Huebotter of Houston, and Mrs. Anna Wendland and Mrs. Wm. O'Donnell; one brother, Leopold Britz; one nephew, August Hornung of San Antonio, and one brother-in-law, Albert Hornung.

Deceased was one of the most highly esteemed ladies of Medina county and her passing has cast a shadow on many homes. She was a devout Christian, long a member of the Catholic Church. Truly a noble, Christian woman has gone to her reward.

A half century is a long span in human life, but had Mrs. Hornung survived seven days longer that would have been the period of her married life. Yesterday (July 8) would have marked the fiftieth anniversary of her wedded life, and her relatives and friends were arranging to properly observe her golden wedding anniversary, and her sudden demise held a double grief for those engaged in this work of love.

The funeral occurred at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, following Requiem Mass at St. John's Catholic Church. The body was laid to rest in the Hondo cemetery, the large concourse of sorrowing friends testifying to the love and respect in which she was held.

To the relatives, overwhelmed with grief at their great loss, words of condolence are meaningless. Time alone, the healer of wounds, can eventually assuage the poignant grief that now fills their cup. The knowledge that she is not dead but merely gone before and will greet them in that bright and beautiful land where there is no parting, should reconcile them to the temporary separation.

"This life of mortal breath
Is but the suburb of the life elysian
Whose portal we call Death."

Card of Thanks.

To all who so generously aided and assisted and sympathized with us in our recent great bereavement in the death of our beloved wife and mother, Mrs. August Hornung, we return our most grateful thanks; also we wish to acknowledge our great indebtedness to those who provided the beautiful floral offerings at the funeral. May our gracious Heavenly Father bless and reward each and all of them for their kindness to us is the prayer of sincerely yours,

INDIAN DAYS IN MEDINA COUNTY.

From the Memoirs of Captain Xavier Wantz, a Noted Indian Fighter of Early Days.

(CONTINUE FROM LAST WEEK.)

Wantz raised a scout and came on they had been trying to do something behind the Hondo men. The Verde with the wounded. The rags were scout went nine miles in a northwest direction and found nine dead horses which the Indians had killed. They were not altogether, but scattered along the trail. Seven miles further on they found a gray horse that was not hurt himself, but was sprinkled with blood on the shoulders. An Indian was either shot on this horse or else a wounded one had been carried on him until the animal gave out. Six miles further on, while going over a mountain, a bunch of men and horses were discovered. They were thought to be the Indians, but proved to be the Hondo scouts under the command of Isaac King. They yelled at the Verde men to see who they were. They all got together, numbering thirty-one men, and kept on in the pursuit. Some wanted to turn back, but Wantz was not willing and said he would trail as long as he could see. Two miles from here was Terry Wilson's ranch, where were young Wilson and a negro (some say a Mexican). The Indians attacked them, but both escaped, Wilson on horse-back and the negro on foot in the brush. The Indians looked for him but could not find him, and this delay caused the white men to overtake them before night. Near this ranch the Indians killed eighteen head of cattle and horses (two of the latter), and cut out their tongues, hearts and livers. While at this the scouts came upon them. The Indians were badly scattered but at the approach of the white men collected to give them battle. They, however, dodged the issue and continued their retreat. As they went over an open country thirty-four were counted. Wantz, Chris Schumaker, Billy Johnson and a Mexican named Casuso followed at a run, and the other men came on, being scattered for a mile back. Some stopped at the dead cattle and got knives and ropes. The Indians ran two miles, crossed the Hondo, went on to a mountain and commenced firing on the advance of the settlers. By this time the horse ridden by Wantz failed, and he dismounted and went on foot. He had on a pair of leggings, and getting tired of these, stopped to unfasten them, and the Indians fired a volley at the time, hit the ground all around him, and knocked dirt in his face. The Mexican now came up and the Indians fired at him. He dodged and dropped when the puffs of smoke were seen, and was not hit, although the dirt and rocks were knocked up all around him. The Indians cursed him and said in Spanish, "There, I liked to get you that time." He then took shelter behind rocks, and Johnson, Schumaker and others opened fire on the Indians from cover also. Wantz also commenced firing, and twenty-five shots in all were fired. Wantz now went back to where he had left his horse and waited for the other men to come, who were approaching as fast as they could, attracted and guided by the firing. It was nearly night when they came, and would not go up the mountain, as darkness would come before they could accomplish anything.

Wantz saw a horse half way up the mountain, saddled, and back more on his head and nose, and said, "Boys, let's go up and get him." He had seen the Indian jump off the horse and leave him, and was not afraid it was a trap. Wantz set out up the mountain to secure the deserted animal, and Schumaker followed him. When they reached the horse Wantz wanted to go on up and see where the Indians were. They went on up, and others of the crowd below came on up also to be in the battle, if it was a fight. The Indians were gone and had left four horses and two saddles. The latter were lying on the ground.

Wantz thinks most of the Indians went on at first and only left a few to fire at them. They secured the horses and all went to the Wilson ranch that night. Wilson's son, who had escaped and raised the alarm, caused the Sabinal and Seco men to come out and strike the trail after the first party had abandoned it. They found where the Indians had camped that night after the fight, and saw beds of cedar and bloody rags lying about where Auto Accidents.

A couple of auto accidents occurred east of town Sunday and it appears almost a miracle that no fatal casualties resulted.

The first happened about 8:30 in the morning, just this side of the Eckhart farm. Mr. John Fest of San Antonio, driving a car occupied by Mrs. Fest and Miss Kraut, lost control of the machine and it went into the ditch, turning over. The car was somewhat demolished and Mrs. Fest suffered a broken right leg, just above the ankle. The other two occupants of the car escaped without injury. Another car coming along shortly afterward, the injured lady was brought to Dr. Smith's office for surgical attention. The fractured member was "set" and the lady sent to San Antonio on the evening train. Last accounts from the hospital reports her as resting well.

The second accident occurred just beyond the scene of the first. This car was occupied by five Sabinal young men. This car turned some half a dozen somersaults, but except the loss of several patches of epidermis from the nose of one of the young men, all escaped without injury. The car was badly smashed up—could hardly be classed as first class junk. The Fest car was not very materially damaged.

Both cars are reported to have been traveling at a high rate of speed at the times of the accidents.

Mrs. Reily Entertains.

Tuesday afternoon Mr. Jacob Reily, Sr., entertained at tea in her lovely new home, honoring her house guests, Mrs. Herbert Smith of Needles, California, and Mrs. Jacob Reily, Jr., of Kingsville. Shasta daisies and ferns filled the crystal and silver vases and were worn by the honorees. Assisting the hostess in receiving were Misses Gertrude and Annie Reily, and the guests were served by Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Reily in the dining room—a very pleasant way of renewing their many old friendships and making new ones.

During the afternoon the Edison found rivals in the vocal and instrumental selections rendered by Mrs. Smith, Misses Gertrude and Annie Reily, Clara Decker, Mrs. Horace Bradley and Miss Corinne New.

On the belated east-bound passenger last night a prisoner taken from Arizona to San Antonio made his escape by jumping the train near Dunlay. The guarding officer notified our officers from Lacoste to assist in re-capturing the man. Mr. C. J. Bless and Chas. Schuehle responded, but in the dark, stormy night they were unable to locate the man with their searchlights and had to return.

Otto Balzen, who is employed at Renken's tin shop, had the misfortune to get his arm fractured while playing baseball Sunday. He was struck on the left forearm by the ball, breaking one of the bones and cracking the other. He now is nursing the injured arm in a plaster cast and hopes soon to recover normal use of the injured member.

Clyde Hollaway has returned from Houston where he had been in a public service hospital. He is looking much improved. Clyde underwent a half dozen or less surgical operations while in the hospital, but the doctors had no better success at killing him than the Hunns, and his friends now hope that he will completely regain his normal health.

Last Monday being a holiday at the State University Prof. Howell ran over and spent a portion of his time here punching cattle. Prof. Howell says the Hondo school now has full affiliation in English with the University.

And She Couldn't Deny It.

I wear "stuffings" in the sides of my hair to make my "puffs" fluffier than they otherwise would be. One night in a crowded street car I was standing in front of a nice-looking young man when one of my "rats," as they are sometimes called, fell out of my hair and into his hand. It would not have been so bad if he hadn't hollered out, "Young lady, I think this rat belongs to you."—Exchange.

WHY IT SUCCEEDS.

Because It's For One Thing Only, and Hondo People Appreciate This.

Nothing can be good for everything. Doing one thing well brings success. Doan's Kidney Pills are for one thing only.

For weak or disordered kidneys. Here is Hondo evidence to prove their worth.

Mrs. X. Wantz, Hondo, says: "My kidneys were disordered for some time. A dull bearing down pain appeared in my back which greatly increased until I had to give up. I couldn't stoop over or straighten up again without severe pain. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and bought some at Martin's Drug Store. From the start Doan's did me good and I gladly recommend them to others." (Statement given May 29, 1915).

On May 3, 1919, Mrs. Wantz said: "I think just as much of Doan's Kidney Pills today as when I gave my former statement. I have had no occasion to use them since, for the cure they worked then has proven permanent."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Wantz had. Foster - Milburn Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Man You Work For

If you work for a man for goodness sake work for him. If he pays wages that supply you with bread and butter, work for him, speak well of him, be sure to think well of him, stand by him, and stand by the institution he represents. I think if I worked for a man I would work for him. I would not work for him a part of the time but all the time. I would give an undivided service or none. If put to a pinch, an ounce of loyalty is worth a pound of cleverness. If you must vilify, condemn and eternally disparage, why, resign your position and when you are on the outside, damn to your heart's content. But so long as you are a part of an institution, do not condemn it. Not that you will injure the institution—not that—but when you disparage the concern of which you are a part, you disparage yourself.—Elbert Hubbard.

"Oh Boy! Ain't this the life!!"

I LIKE my job.
BUT DAYS do come.
WHEN SKIES are blue.
AND BREEZES stir.
THE PAPERS on my desk.
AND THEN I think.
WHAT I would do.
IF I were boss.
I'D OPEN shop.
AT TWELVE o'clock.
AND CLOSE at one.
WITH ONE hour off.
FOR LUNCH, and I.
WOULD GET old Sam.
TO RUN me out.
IN HIS big six.
AND DROP me off.
UNDER A greenwood tree.
BESIDE A babbling brook.
AND THERE I'd lie.

AND EVERY once.
IN A while.
ROLL OVER.
OR MAYBE sit and think.
BUT MOST likely.
JUST SIT.
AND EVERY once.
IN A while I'd light.

I GUESS that wouldn't
